Kelly Edwards is an artist and artisan. Her pottery is modern without being overstated. Each piece is hand built, carefully engineered and often embellished with subtle carving and striking copper accents. Interested in art from a young age, Kelly is inspired by painters and therefore creates three-dimensional wall hangings that will replace or go along with the paintings on your wall. Precision and perseverance best describe Kelly's work. She is a Raku specialist that requires more tenacity than luck. Kelly resides in North Little Rock with her two children. You will find her to be humble, down-to-earth, and passionate about her work.
