Adams Pryor Adams is a senior at the University of Arkansas. He is the photo editor for the Arkansas Traveler, the University's student paper. The photos featured in this series were taken while Adams studied abroad in India on the University's TEXT Program (Tibetans in Exile Today). The TEXT Program is an oral-history project designed to record the stories of Tibetans currently living in refugee settlements in India. The program focuses on the Tibetans who left their country in 1959, but still have vivid memories of traditional Tibetan culture. All proceeds from the sale of these photos will be donated to the Tibetan Children Villages, a network of schools in India providing traditional Tibetan education to children living in exile.
